Man Put Under Arrest Outside Braves Field

The first arrest by the police in their crusade against baseball ticket speculators was made this afternoon outside Braves Field. The arrest was that of a man giving the name of Howard J. Duncan, twenty, of New York. The arrest was made by Patrolman White of Brighton. Duncan was accused of a violation of the park rules. A hundred or more speculators worked among the throngs outside the park today. Tickets were sold at prices ranging from $5 to $40 for a pair of seats.

Armenian Outrages Denounced by Grey

By International News Service. LONDON, Oct. 12.—Replying to questions on the Armenian outrages in the House of Commons this afternoon, Mr. Edward Grey said: "We have only a feeling of horror and indignation at the outrages, but we have no further information to convey to the House on the subject."

Submarine Sinks British Steamship

By International News Service. LONDON, Oct. 12.—The British steamer Halloway, a liner of 1,400 tons, has been sunk by a German submarine. The Halloway was built in 1902 and was owned by the British and South American Steam Navigation Company, Ltd. Her length was 215 feet and her breadth 32 feet. She was the largest that has been sunk by a U-boat in several weeks.

SELF-REDUCING

Made expressly for stout women, to reduce the size and weight of the figure and support the abdomen, the Self-Reducing Idea has been developed into such a variety of models that every stout woman, no matter how difficult her figure, can be correctly corseted. For example:

No. 322.—For average stout figures; medium bust and skirt; elasticated top bands. No. 325, same, for taller figures—$3.00.

No. 344.—For full figure of medium height; has "invisible" Self-Reducing Straps. No. 345, same, for taller full figures—$3.00.

MIGHTY ARMY OF FANS PARKED IN THE BRAVES FIELD AND FILLING STREETS OUTSIDE

BRAVES FIELD, Oct. 12.—Going to the game today was perfectly simple. All you needed to was outwit and outlast some thousands who were doing the same thing.

Wise folk started at 10 o'clock. Down at that hour the cigar stores downtown were no longer crowded, but there was a man-crowd in town. And it was a man-crowd all the way. In one car for instance, there were seven men and four women. At one period, outside the park, there was not a woman in sight.

At Park street the seats in the cars were taken, at Boylston street standing room disappeared, at Copley they kept coming in.

"Don't shove," said someone. "ONE LICK!" replied the shaver. "I got a $5 seat for four bits by shoving yesterday. Paid my four bits—walked right into the grandstand and sat down. No one came to put me out and I stayed. Going to do the same to-day."

"Huh," replied the other, "one of your kind tried on me yesterday. I got two cops before he would get out."

Every other man on the cars was feeling his hands pocket to be sure that his ticket was safe. One without a ticket admitted:

"I don't expect to get in. Just going out to take a chance and see the crowd."

A park notice of yesterday began the new arrivals with paper.

"Listen to the monkey's chatter," a lone girl laughed. "It sounds like frogs in spring."

But pennants, cigars, aprons, beer, sandwiches and whatever else the arm and legs were thrust into, went for you plunged into the crowd outside the park.

There were fifty automobiles parked at 1910. At 1810 the long lines of beautiful motor cars broke away from the park and moved down the street. The two boxes that were open.

RACE TRACK CROWD. The mounted police pushed in among them. A police captain, who had been in a window overlooking, gave orders. The three turned their horses and backed them into the crowd, the horses flying tails evicting the mob out of the box. In ten minutes the crowd was in the park.

But during the excitement some one had spilled the low, ungraced wall between first base and right field bleachers. The crowd scaled the wall in front of the field, and before the police, busy elsewhere, could transfer, twenty had won a free admission. Two stars police, below the wall yelled to them to come down.

They did not. In fact, they jered at the majority of the crowd.

At 11 o'clock the left field bleachers and the fence-off end of the first base bleachers were full. Half a dozen police preserved the integrity of the fence that barred off first base bleachers.

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR. Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you get a 10-cent bottle of "Sage Tea and Hair Colorant" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Colorant are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it dyes the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, stringy and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Sage Tea and Hair Colorant, and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

kn P. Fitzgerald, "Tom" Dwyer, "Big" Lane, "Charley" Innis, George Rosen, Timmah, and every other fellow we can think of to help build the team out of a hole. My own opinion is that we should take two games in order, two straight.

If Jackie Keenan, our beloved president, were as good old self, I should be SURE of it.

In any event, however, I bank on "Red" and "Jimmy" Coughlin, and "Rosters" and the boys of the Ninth Regiment band.

Jolly Ray Cox Gives Her Recipe for Rejuvenation

"HER own hour." That is what every woman requires for her proper development, and the maintenance of health, and what she should insist upon having and take each day, is the estimation of Miss Amy Cox, the jovial comedienne of "Twin Beds" at the Park Square Theatre.

"My her own hour I do not mean an hour by the clock," said Miss Cox, in conversing about her belief in the means of retaining one's mental and physical equipoise, "but a certain length of time, less than that of one to be greatly occupied, more than an hour if she time may be spared. And that time should be spent absolutely alone in emptying out one's mind of all the things they want to think out or reason about.

A black and white portrait of a woman with dark, wavy hair, looking slightly to the right. The image is framed by a thick black border.

"There are people who think one should relax to replenish the system with vitality. It is not necessary to my mind, to relax, or to practice any one of the host of peculiar methods preached for rejuvenation. I must clean your mind out. Settle all the questions, big and little, that have perplexed you all day. It is surprising, when one first tries it

In Our World

THE dasheen, a comparatively new edible, threatens the supremacy of the potato. It is grown with much success and with much profit to its cultivators. It grows to a height of from four to six feet. The plant has shield-shaped leaves, not unlike an elephant's ears. Each hill of dasheen contains one or two large spherical tubers, or bulbs, which grow to five pounds; round them are developed numerous tubers.

Both corms and tubers are like potatoes, but the tubers contain less water. One plant will produce from four to ten pounds of tubers in good rich soil. The tubers have a nutty flavor and are easily digested.

The cook can serve a dasher of the tubers always by a potato, and she can also prepare the blanched shoots, forced from the tubers, which are like the shoots of asparagus. The leaves when tender, can take the place of spinach.

Many of the oldest walnut trees in this country were originally planted, not for the sake of the nuts, but for the shade they cast, the best gunstocks. The largest walnut grove in England is said to have been planted by the king at first 365 trees, one for each day of the year, which were planted by the king's gardener, and the owner of the farm, who observed that, as wars would never cease, it was better to plant 365 gunstocks.

This clock, which is twenty feet in height, was made by Jean Baptiste Schuler of La Besse. Besides various astronomical devices indicating true solar time, it has a great planetarium in which the revolutions of the planets are represented, so that the relative positions of each planet at any time can be seen at a glance.

Of late attempts have been made to construct aeroplanes of transparent material, at least for all purposes where a canopy covering is used at present, such as in the case of balloons. The latest ideas of the kind is said to be an aeroplane which uses no inflammable celluloid for the wings and other parts, but employs a few hundred feet elevation apparatus is invisible, according to reports. A new muffling box for the motor is also being sound. One advantage of the transparency is that observations can be made in all directions.

President Wilson's Conversion Provides Another Proof That Our Policies Are Permanently Sane and Sound

PRESIDENT WILSON announces that he NOW earnestly favors adequate naval and military preparation for defence.

We are glad to see his conversion to this sensible and patriotic doctrine.

We congratulate the country upon the fact that Mr. Wilson has abandoned the attitude he assumed nine months ago in the controversy with Representative Gardner and has adopted the attitude maintained, as all the country well knows, for so many years by all the Hearst newspapers.

During these many years all the Hearst papers have fought strenuously and continuously in support of an adequate system of national defence and a great navy as the main support of that system.

We have fought for this policy during many years when it was unpopular.

We have been called jingoes and have been told that we were anxious to provoke war, when, in fact, all we were anxious to do was to PREVENT WAR.

For years we have carried permanently fixed at the top of our columns a demand for a mighty navy; for the establishment of strategic points of defence in the West Indies, in the Hawaiian Islands and other possessions; for the construction and fortification of the Isthmian Canal; for the adoption of a thorough and efficient system of citizen soldiery; for the enlargement of the military and naval schools at West Point and Annapolis, making them national universities providing military education for all who attend and thus supplying a reserve of competent officers among the citizenry in time of peace.

We have fought for a government-owned merchant marine which would be in effect a self-supporting auxiliary of the navy, available for purposes of trade and commerce in times of peace and of defence in times of war.

All of these things have been regarded as visionary and unnecessary, as manifestations of a turbulent and truculent disposition, of a desire to establish militarism in America and to involve the country in the distress and disaster of war.

Our true object has been to relieve the country of the danger of war and the destruction and disaster of war.

Our object has been to prevent the overwhelming expense of war and the tremendous destruction of life and devastation of homes and holdings in war.

Our purpose has been not to create militarism but a democratic system of defence which would be sufficient for the protection of our country WITHOUT MILITARISM.

We have encountered the obstacles of all those who initiate reforms or who labor in their support before the reforms have become generally accepted.

Today the whole nation is demanding the things for which the Hearst papers have stood.

The plight of the European nations which did not want war, but which have been forced into it through a combination of events or through the aggressions of the nations which did want war, has proved to this country that a mere DESIRE FOR PEACE is not sufficient TO INSURE PEACE.

If we are to retain peace we must be able to repel war.

If we are to conserve our material and intellectual progress, our prosperity, our political institutions, our Occidental standards of living, we must be able to prevent their destruction by any invading enemy.

To accomplish this successfully a definite and sufficient system of organization must be devised, and the Hearst papers are proud to assert that no organization or system has been suggested superior to the ones that they have for many years advocated.

The systems which are now being adopted and to which the President of the United States is now patriotically lending his support are the systems which the Hearst papers have supported year in and year out through storms of opposition and opprobrium for the past twenty years.

For more than a decade we have specifically urged a naval program calling for the annual construction of four battleships of the first class.

Had that program been carried out during the administrations of Presidents Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson, we would now have a first line of naval defence superior to that of any nation save Great Britain and amply adequate to guard our shores from any attack that may reasonably be apprehended.

In spite of the urgency of the Hearst papers and their continual warnings to the country and appeals to the patriotism of Congress, that sensible program was NOT carried out, and we have today a navy inferior in force to either of three European navies, and actually deteriorating until it would be inferior to the navy of Japan

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

"SAIL ON!" COLUMBUS DAY, 1915

Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind the gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores,
Before him only shoreless seas.
The good mate said: "Now must we pray,
For lo! the very stars are gone.
Brave Admiral, speak; what shall I say?
"Why, say 'Sail on! sail on! and on!'"

Then, pale and worn, he kept his deck,
And peered through darkness. Ah, that night,
Of all dark nights! And then a speck—
A light! A light! A light! A light!
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!
It grew to be Time's burst of dawn;
He gained a world; he gave that world
Its greatest lesson: "On! and on!"
—From the poem by Joaquin Miller.

—More Truth Than Poetry—

By James J. Montague

The Destroyer

A New Phone, But the Old Stall!
He fiercely shook the wireless phone,
As one whose heart was tried full
And shouted in a savage tone:

"Hey! Madamazar 3-4-5!
You've kept me waiting here a week;
Wake up there! Get a move, I say!
Hi! What's the matter, can't you speak?"

I want that number right away—
The weary central maiden sighed;
Men always picked, it seemed, on her.

But without rancor she replied:
"The atmosphere is busy, sir!"

A Great Convenience
In a new London theatre there is a telephone at every seat, which enables the patrons of the house to call up their friends and warn them not to come to the show.

Taking a Chance
A candidate is asking people not to vote for him, hoping that they will pay to more attention to him than they do to the candidates who put the request the other way round.

Almost Reasonable
With votes in Indiana quoted at 10 cents a piece, even the thrifty Fairbanks no longer need shudder at the thought of making another campaign.

"Bah! Bah! Bah!" by Machinery
What a routine organization Yale will have when that heavy artillery company goes into commission!

But Not in Mexico
"The United States was founded to assert human rights"—A well-known President now in office

PITY the feeble old fellow,
You see at the falling of dark,
In shabby, worn clothes seeking troubled repose

On a bench at the edge of the park,
He once rolled about in his motor
And had a big place at Good Ground,

But he lost every cent, did the luckless old gent,
The day the assessor came
'round.

DO NOT envy your opulent neighbor, Who flaunts his magnificent yacht

All Things Have Their Purpose
Now that it has been discovered that bread and wine can be made of paraffin perhaps some investigator will find a use for pie plant.

Maybe They Yelled "Fore" Too
Soon
It begins to look as if the British had fooled their drive.

Common Clay
John Greenleaf Whittier was a Quaker and a poet, but along about this time of the year he wrote:
"What mingles the lip,
What brightens the eye,
What calls back the past
Like the rich pumpkin pie?"
And then, as now, nobody could answer him.

It Ought to Be a Hospital Street
In Chicago a street has been set aside for inexperienced drivers.
Such a street, however, can be safely traveled by experienced drivers
only.

Keeping Their Word
The fact that the allies have already ordered $11,000,000 worth of artificial legs in this country bears out their promise that not all of that half billion loan is to be spent for arms.

Torture
Tommy's turning somersaults,
Darting here and there,
Squirreling wittily on the floor,
Leaping in the air;

Throwing legs and arms about,
Bouncing in a bow
Like the India rubber man in the Barnum show.

Yummy! spirits did you say?
Well, you missed it there—
It's a brand new Winter suit off of brand underwear.

It Ought to Be a Hospital Street
In Chicago a street has been set aside for inexperienced drivers.
Such a street, however, can be safely
traveled by experienced drivers
only.

Keeping Their Word
The fact that the allies have already ordered $11,000,000 worth of artificial legs in this country bears
out their promise that not all of that half billion loan is to be spent
for arms.

in 1915, if there should be no improvement on what has been done during the nearly three years in which Mr. Wilson has been President.

For more than a decade we have persistently advocated the construction of auxiliary craft—of destroyers and of submarines, of which we should possess more than any other nation, owing to the enormous length of our coasts and the many possible points of attack to be defended.

Our persistent and urgent appeals met apathy in the White House and disregard in the Houses of Congress.

Politicians masquerading as statesmen preferred to squander millions where the money would bring them local applause and votes rather than to spend millions where the money would bring the nation safety and insure the dignity and the honor of the republic.

There never was a more discouraging task than the long, long efforts of the Hearst papers to awaken the country to its precarious condition, and to awaken administrations and Congresses to the plain dictates of patriotism and common sense.

Because we showed, day after day, the nation's perilous weakness we were denounced as being traitorously disrespectful to the government—as if to roughly waken a sleeping man upon whom a lion or a snake was creeping was to be disrespectful to him.

Because we plainly told the people that their representatives were more solicitous to serve corporate interests and to insure their own petty personal political success than they were to serve the nation and to insure its safety we were accused of political treachery—as if the success of this party or that party should weigh anything at all when put in the scales over against the welfare and the security of the republic itself.

Thus maligned, accused of every conceivable base motive, misrepresented by every device of liars skilled in their trade, we went steadily on with the campaign of education which was meant to save the nation, confident in the rectitude of our purpose, confident of the verdict of time, confident in the ultimate approval of the American people.

Now, standing in the full sunlight of success, seeing everywhere about us an awakened people determined to prepare the nation against any attack of any enemy, hearing the arguments and the appeals we have used for twenty years suddenly become the shibboleth alike of politicians and of patriots, we ask you, citizens, if time has not justified our purposes and our policies and if we have not served well and usefully the republic?

Now, we do not say these things boastfully, nor to win applause, but because we desire, by the force of this powerful example, to impress deeply upon your minds, fellow-citizens, the fact that the policies of the Hearst papers are permanent policies, and right policies.

We call this remarkable example of triumph over private abuse and malignancy and popular apathy to witness that as the policy of national preparedness for war has proved itself sound and stable, so the policies of these newspapers in other great problems of social organization and political relations at home and abroad are sound and stable policies.

Our policies do not shift with every wind that blows; exactly what they were when they were defined and fixed at the head of all the Hearst newspapers' editorial columns, so they are today, so they will be tomorrow.

There they have stood and there they will stand until the persistent advocacy and argument of these newspapers have brought about their adoption by the people themselves.

We demand the creation of a navy and an auxiliary fleet of defence superior to that of any nation in the world.

We demand legislation that will build up and not destroy the American merchant marine.

We demand the government ownership of the great lines of transportation by land and by water.

We demand the proper fortification of our coasts and our outlying possessions.

We demand a foreign policy which shall everywhere protect the lives and property of American citizens—in Mexico as well as on board British passenger ships.

We demand a strictly impartial neutrality, which shall be neutral in fact and in deed as well as in prayers and professions.

We demand the training of a citizen soldiery, which, without militarism or conscription, will be numerous enough to form rapidly an adequate force for defence.

We demand the enlargement of West Point and Annapolis until they have become national universities turning out yearly thousands of graduates who can be called to command the trained volunteer soldiery in time of war.

We demand a complete and continuous store of weapons and munitions of war, that the citizen soldiery called to defend the country may have ready to hand the means of powerful defence and counter attack.

And we demand that the President and the Congress when it next convenes CARRY out the now unanimous will of the people and make the necessary appropriations to prepare the navy and the army for adequate defence of our country.

These are the permanent policies of the Hearst newspapers. From these policies these newspapers have not swerved, and will not swerve—no, not so much as by the thickness of a hair.

That they are sensible and wise policies, we are most firmly convinced. That they are patriotic and unselfish policies, we are absolutely certain. And for their justification we appeal to time and the forward march of events and the ultimate verdict of history.
